Overview

RCW 81.112.350 requires Sound Transit to provide quarterly updates on implementation of a regional equitable transit-oriented development (TOD) strategy. The TOD program is empowered by the voter-approved plan to create diverse, vibrant and mixed-income communities around transit. To achieve these outcomes, Sound Transit offers its surplus properties—those acquired for building and operating the transit system but no longer provide a transit use to the agency—as development opportunities for affordable housing or other developments benefiting the public.
Another Big Year Ahead for TOD Projects

On the heels of 2022, where Sound Transit issued three Requests for Proposals (RFPs) which could yield more than 500 new units of affordable housing, the Agency is on track to release two more RFPs in 2023 that could result in several hundred more units of affordable housing.

Both sites, Lynnwood City Center and U District 45th & Roosevelt, present exciting development opportunities in high opportunity locations, but also face significant physical obstacles that require clarity prior to RFP release and resolution prior to development.

Public and Private Partnerships Critical to Breaking Ground

For any project featuring affordable housing, alignment of resources is important. In the current environment of rising capital and construction costs, it becomes critical. Sound Transit seeks to align both committed and uncommitted resources from public and private partners to get projects off the drawing board and people into homes.

Sound Transit has successfully partnered with the City of Seattle, King County and the Washington State Housing Finance commission to pre-commit funds to projects at the RFP stage. The Agency has also partnered with A Regional Coalition for Housing (ARCH), South King County Housing and Homelessness Partnership (SKHHP), Amazon’s Housing Equity Fund, and Microsoft’s Affordable Housing Initiative to include eligibility language in the funding section of RFPs. The more resources are aligned, the easier it is for developers to propose projects that maximize affordable housing outcomes.

The quantity, scale, and complexity of projects in the Sound Transit pipeline will require significant financial resources and creative partnerships to meet the moment with so many high-opportunity properties available from the Agency’s transit system expansion.

Lynnwood: A fishy challenge for Sound Transit’s first TOD in Snohomish County

The Lynnwood City Center TOD site (profiled below) is in the heart of a burgeoning Lynnwood City Center, which has embraced its TOD future with several policies to increase density.

The property is impacted by an onsite piped stream that will require daylighting and restoration, which, while adding additional risk and cost to the project, will result in new habitat for native, endangered salmonid species. Sound
Transit is engaging with multiple funders and submitted a grant application to the U.S. Department of Transportation to align resources for the daylighting and predevelopment.

This will be Sound Transit’s first TOD site in Snohomish County. In 2021 the County passed a sales tax to support affordable housing and behavioral health facilities, which could be a key funding source if an affordable housing outcome is proposed.

U District 45th & Roosevelt: A tall order for getting to scale in a prime location

The TOD site at 45th and Roosevelt near the U District Station in Seattle is a prime site for affordable housing, as evidenced by its current temporary use as a tiny house village for people experiencing homelessness. The site is challenged by an alley that bisects the parcel and reduces the development capacity. Sound Transit is working closely with the City of Seattle to potentially vacate the alley in advance of offering the site for TOD. An alley vacation, which typically is not considered by the City in advance of a development proposal, would allow developers to confidently propose projects that maximize affordable outcomes on the site, reduce the development timeline, and not take on the financial risk of designing a project that has to be redesigned if the vacation is not granted.

If the alley vacation is approved, developers could propose a high-rise building with more than 200 units of housing. Without the vacation, a high-rise would not be possible on the site. If the alley hurdle is cleared, the funding hurdle will be just as daunting. Type I high-rise construction is more expensive than wood-frame construction and would require significant resources. Sound Transit is working closely with the City of Seattle Office of Housing to explore a precommitment of funds for the project.

USDOT Visits Sound Transit

At Home with the Trains in Bellevue: Build America Bureau staff members tour the new Operations and Maintenance Facility East in Bellevue.

In March, Sound Transit and the City of Bellevue welcomed Build America Bureau’s Executive Director, Dr. Morteza Farajian, at Sound Transit’s Operations and Maintenance Facility East and Spring District/120th Station in Bellevue. The Build America Bureau provided Sound Transit TIFIA loans to support the construction of both transit facilities, as well as provided a TIFIA loan to the City of Bellevue to support the construction of Spring Boulevard to support transit-oriented growth in BelRed.
Notice of Intent to Award Issued for Overlake Village TOD

In March, Sound Transit issued a Notice of Intent to Award to Bellwether Housing for two parcels at Overlake Village Station in Redmond.

Bellwether proposes to build 333 units of affordable housing serving 30-80% of Area Median Income (AMI) with the average AMI at 50%. The project will be comprised of studio, 1-bed, 2-bed, and 3-bed units in a 6-story building. The plan includes several units to be set-aside for Individuals with Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities (IDD).

The ground floor of the project will be activated through community-oriented spaces and commercial tenants. Bellwether is working with a community coalition comprised of OneRedmond, OneEastside SPARK, Indian American Community Services, and Eastside for All to provide community social services, non-profit office space, and a small business incubator hub to support people of color, immigrants, and low-income residents of the apartments and broader neighborhood.

Bellwether has developed two other Sound Transit properties, the recently completed Cedar Crossing in partnership with Mercy Housing Northwest at Roosevelt Station and The Rise/Blake House in partnership with Plymouth Housing at First Hill.
Lynnwood City Center TOD Hosts Developer Open Houses

Sound Transit hosted two Developer Open House events in March and April to share information with the development community about the upcoming Lynnwood City Center TOD opportunity.

More than 36 participants learned about the site conditions, including a piped stream that will require restoration, development goals for the site, and the process for developer selection. The site is directly adjacent to the future Lynnwood City Center Station, which will connect Lynnwood to the existing light rail system and provide frequent trips to destinations including the University of Washington, downtown Seattle, and SeaTac airport. As the new system terminus, the station is expected to have record levels of ridership, serving more passengers than Capitol Hill and University of Washington stations combined.

Across the street from the TOD site, the Lynnwood Transit Center serves riders with local Community Transit and regional ST Express bus routes. The Transit Center will also be served by Stride Bus Rapid Transit service beginning in 2026. Together, these transit options will create a unique level of connectivity to Seattle and Eastside destinations in Bothell, Kirkland and Bellevue.

Revolving Loan Fund Pursues Existing Fund Option

Sound Transit plans to move forward this year to contribute $20 million dollars to one or more revolving loan funds to support the development of affordable housing opportunities related to equitable transit-oriented development within the boundaries of the regional transit authority as required by state statute 81.112.350.

In 2019 Sound Transit partnered with LISC in a multi-year engagement to assess the landscape of opportunities for the fund. The three options identified and explored included: creating a new leveraged fund, contributing directly to projects, and contributing to an existing fund.

During the process of engaging with Agency leadership and the affordable housing development community, the option of contributing to one or more existing funds illuminated several advantages.

The most significant advantage is that it will help expand equitable transit-oriented development opportunities beyond Sound Transit-owned property. This is important in geographies where Sound Transit does not anticipate surplus land, such as the Hilltop Tacoma Link Extension.

Additional advantages include the desire to not duplicate the efforts of existing revolving loan funds in the region, and to respond to a high-priority need identified by the affordable housing development community.

Land acquisition loans would allow affordable housing developers to acquire land for future development with favorable terms and below market interest rates.

Sound Transit presented this option in a Board Executive Committee update in March 2023. Next, the Agency will develop draft term sheets with one or more revolving loan funds for the acquisition of property for affordable housing, including the Washington State Housing Finance Commission’s Land Acquisition Program. The Agency plans to bring Key Business Terms to the Board later this year for approval.

Transfers of Surplus Property

Sound Transit transferred a surplus property in March located at the Shoreline North Station that was sold to the developer of an adjacent TOD. The Sound Transit property was undevelopable and not suitable for the development of housing as an independent property, however when combined with the adjacent privately-owned property, it allowed for additional development outcomes to be achieved and for Sound Transit to generate revenue.

Compliance with RCW 81.112.350

RCW 81.112.350 requires Sound Transit to offer at least 80% of its surplus property that are suitable for the development of housing first to Qualified Entities (local governments, housing authorities, and non-profit developers) for affordable housing, unless certain exceptions apply. If a Qualified Entity receives property through that process, then at least 80% of the housing units created on that property need to be affordable to households earning no greater than 80% of area median income. Since the statute took effect, Sound Transit has complied with the statute, as depicted below:

- % of property suitable for housing offered to Qualified Entities (QE): 95%
- % of units on property transferred to QEs for affordable housing serving households at or below 80% AMI: 100%
