

Regional Transit Long-Range Plan

A sound tomorrow starts today

The Puget Sound region's population is projected to grow 30 percent by 2040. Join the conversation about how to maintain the region's mobility, economy and environment.

On December 18, 2014 the Sound Transit Board updated the regional transit Long-Range Plan, the vision for how our transit system should grow over many decades after voter-approved projects are complete by 2023. The updated plan, shaped by more than 24,000 survey responses and public comments, will determine how future expansions should occur.
